June Meeting

There are no minutes this month, since last month was the dinner meeting and swap meet.

All who participated in the swap meet seemed well pleased. Many didn't bring plants to swap and perhaps, since this is something we don't often do, some people were hesitant.

But now that we know how much fun it is, maybe we can do it again at one of our regular meetings.

Summer Growing

Well, summer is here and it's time to try to keep, not only ourselves, but also our plants, as cool as possible. Air circulation is important, so keep those fans blowing. This is the time of year when most plants are in their active growth stage, so they need to be provided with the necessary nutrients. Remember, water first, then fertilize.

Also, bugs think this time of year is picnic time, so be sure to inspect your plants often and spray your insecticide at the first sign of unwelcome visitors.
