Fall Growing Tips

Well summer is finally over. It' s time to think about protecting your plants from the cold spells that come our v

Remember, phals and vandas do not like it below 60° and c and dendrobs are unhappy with temperatures below 55. If y grow your plants outdoors, give some thought to where to them if you must bring them in.

Also, as the days get shorter, do your watering early in the day. Never let the sun go down on wet plants, as this is looking for trouble, especially for phals.
